

LA FOLLETTE A VERY SICK MAN

Special Dispatch From Washington Says He Is Confined To His Room And Bed.

FEVER HAS NOW DEVELOPED TODAY

Inquiry At The Hotel Ontario Discloses That He Is Not So Well Today As He Was Yesterday--

Nothing Serious.

[Special to The Gazette.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—Senator R. M. La Follette is confined to his bed in his apartments at The Ontario. It appears that he contracted a severe cold before leaving Madison for Washington and since his arrival here has not been able to arrest it. He was in his seat in the senate on Monday last, but since then has been confined to his bed. An inquiry at his room this morning brought the report that he was not so well and that a fever has developed. It is not believed the attack will result very seriously, but the senator will not be able to resume his duties in the senate for some days.

WILLIAM WOLFF SMITH.

THE CIVIL SERVICE BOARD HAS MUCH TROUBLE AHEAD

George Fess Of Madison, Resists His Removal
From Office As Oil
Inspector.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-McRAE.]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 11.—The Wisconsin civil service commission is confronted with a serious situation in papers filed by George Fess, of this city, in removing him from the office of deputy oil inspector and appointing H. C. Winter of Madison in the place, the change being made without notice to Mr. Fess on the eve of the enforcement of the new civil service merit law. The action of Governor La Follette in this case was similar to that affecting more than a score of other appointive positions. Mr. Fess claims that the new law went into effect on December 14, but Attorney General Sturdevant, upon request of the governor, declared that the law went into effect December 15. The law was signed by the Governor June 14 and it provides that it shall take effect "six months after passage." Attorneys for Mr. Fess and other removed appointees declare that the law went into effect December 14 and that removals made after that day, of which there were more than 20, were "pretended to be made contrary to the law." The commission will hold a hearing of the matter in a week and if a decision adverse to Mr. Fess is rendered the matter will be carried into the courts.

DR. HARPER ASKED FOR NO OBSERVANCE OF HIS DEATH

University Of Chicago Continues To Hold
Classes As On Any Other Day.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-McRAE.]
Chicago, Ill., Jan. 11.—According to the decree of Dr. Harper, in fact, almost the last order issued by the dying educator, the classes of the University of Chicago went on today uninterrupted. The silent tread of the students, the sorrowing faces of three hundred and seventy-five instructors and the flags at half mast being the only signs of the leader's passing. The private services were conducted at ten-thirty this morning at the residence of Dr. Frank Gonsalus and a number of short addresses were made by other clergymen. The public services will be Sunday afternoon and the body will lie in state at Haskell hall.

At Madison.
Madison, Wis., Jan. 11.—The death of President William R. Harper was received by the president and faculty of the University of Wisconsin as a distinct shock, notwithstanding the assurance that had existed that death was inevitable. President Van Hise, who was for some six years a lecturer on geology at the University of Chicago, was deeply pained and said he considered the death of Dr. Harper as an immeasurable loss to the world of education. He spoke of his personal association with Dr. Harper and of the high opinion in which the deceased educator was held everywhere. "This is painful news to me personally, for I have lost a friend of years, and one upon whose judgment and assistance I could ever rely; but the world suffers more than an individual can, for it loses one of its greatest pioneers in the advancement of higher education."

SOLD FORGED BONDS TO A LOT OF HIS OWN CUSTOMERS

Leland W. Prior, The Cleveland Broker, May Have Caused The Loss Of Millions.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-McRAE.]
Cleveland, O., Jan. 11.—The cause of the suicide of Leland W. Prior, the broker, is believed by bankers who are probing his accounts, that he sold forged municipal bonds in various parts of the country. He was also heavily involved with customers for whom he was carrying New York Exchange accounts. Detectives employed by the bankers' committee are seeking to find who engraved the bonds and who assisted in the disposition. Many arrests are expected. It seems clear there were a number of confederates. The bonds were sold in small lots to some investors in the west and others in the east. It was discovered that he had not sold

TURBINE POWER FOR A NEW BATTLESHIP?

Success of Trials in Steamers May Lead to Experiment in United States Navy.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—The naval constructors and the engineering experts of the navy department are engaged on the plans and specifications for the two 10,000-ton battleships authorized at the last session of congress. The designers are proceeding with their work on the theory that congress will not be asked to increase the displacement, increase, but there are other considerations which evidently control and which have led to the conclusion that it is just as well to provide for the ships of smaller size. Accordingly, the various bureaus of the navy department are engaged in preparing the estimates of weights which are to be credited to each bureau in the completed vessels. It will be some weeks, of course, before proposals will be invited by the navy department. In the meantime, the shipbuilders are evincing the keenest interest in the requirements of the department. The principal departure from past designs of ships of this type is in the machinery. It is under consideration whether or not one of the ships will be equipped with turbine power instead of the ordinary reciprocating engines. The result of the tests with turbine steamers have been so favorable that a strong sentiment in favor of that method of propulsion has developed among progressive experts.

Not in Immediate Danger.

UNIVERSITY IS TO HAVE AN EXHIBIT

College of Engineering Will Show
Its Work at Western Electrical Exposition.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 11.—The electrical department of the college of engineering of the University of Wisconsin has accepted the invitation to have an exhibit at the coming electrical exposition at Chicago. The managers of the exposition have tendered the university a double booth containing over three hundred square feet, and plans are now being completed for an exhibit to occupy this space. The display which the university is arranging will include a number of large photographs of laboratories and equipment of the department of electrical engineering at the university. There will also be an exhibit of typical pieces of apparatus and examples of work made by students in electrical engineering. The exposition, which will open January 15, and continue until January 27, is organized and controlled by the electrical engineers and manufacturers of the middle west and is designed to display the latest results in the invention and manufacture of electrical apparatus and machinery. The Northwestern Electrical association will hold its annual convention in Chicago during the exposition.

PULLMAN CAR HAS A NARROW ESCAPE NOW

Goes Over an Embankment in St.
Louis—Several Are Injured—
Many Frightened.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-McRAE.]
St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 11.—A Pullman car attached to a fast train on the Wabash road, entering the city from Chicago, plunged from the elevated tracks on the levee, this morning, and six persons were badly hurt and others were frightened almost into hysteria. Huge girders caught one end of the car and prevented it from falling entirely to the ground and killing at least six persons.

SWISS INDUSTRIES ARE BENEFICIARIES

Roosevelt's Proclamation Reduces
Tariff on Certain Goods Imported into America.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Bern, Switzerland, Jan. 11.—There is great rejoicing throughout the Swiss federation over the proclamation of President Roosevelt, conferring upon imports from Switzerland to the United States of crude tartar, still wines, vermouth, brandies and works of art, the reductions provided for in section three of the Dingley act. The new arrangement is the result of negotiations for a reciprocity convention between the United States and Switzerland and its granting was preceded by the voluntary announcement of the Swiss government to extend the favored nation treatment to American imports, without, at the same time preferring any request whatever for a return of similar preferences on the part of the American government. It is believed that this new arrangement will be of the greatest benefit to Swiss industries.

BIG COAL PROPERTY DEAL CONSUMMATED

First Step Taken Toward Consolidation of All Mines in West Virginia.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 11.—A result of long negotiations, E. P. Muehlow of this city today became the owner of all the coal mines in the Point Creek, W. Va., district, with the exception of the Detroit and Imperial mines. The price paid for the property was $6,000,000. It is understood that extensive improvements will be made under the new owner and that several new mines will be opened on the property. The coal lands purchased by Mr. Muehlow are situated in Fayette, Raleigh and Kanawha counties. This is the first step in a great consolidation of West Virginia coal properties, which, it is understood, has been contemplated for some time.

ANARCHY RULES ALL OF RUSSIA

Terrible Stories Of Bloodshed And Pillage
Come From All Quarters Of Empire.

COSSACKS SLAY TO THE LAST MAN

None Escape The Wrath Of The Barbaric Horsemen Of The Czar Who Mow Down Rebels Like
Sheep In Slaughter House.

[Special by Scripps-McRae.]

St. Petersburg, Jan. 11.—Telegrams from all parts of the empire bring only stories of bloodshed, revolution, terrorism, fighting, bomb throwing, pillage and murder. From no quarter comes a hopeful message. The empire seems involved in anarchy. There is fighting in Poland, in the Baltic provinces, and in the Caucasus. Here are some of the gloomy tidings:

From Mittau, in Courland, comes the news that a squadron of dragoons, which was ambushed near Hazenpot, losing two men killed and four wounded, received reinforcements later and surrounded the revolutionists. No quarter was given, and the revolutionists, numbering eighty-nine in all, were killed to the last man.

A band of fifty revolutionists made a daring raid on Livenhoff, with the object of obtaining medicines and bandages for the revolutionists in the field. They carried off two Jewish merchants and held them for a heavy ransom, which was paid.

Three Hundred Are Killed.
The Ruskoslovo prints a telegram from Alexandrovsk, South Russia, saying that the railroad station at Sevastopol, which was in the hands of the revolutionists, has been the scene of desperate fighting between them and the Cossacks. The station finally was cleared with the loss of 300 men.

Word comes from Tiflis, via Constantinople, that the plundering of that city continues. Bombs were thrown at a military patrol, whereupon the house from which the bombs were hurled and the adjoining buildings were bombarded by artillery with the result that many persons were killed or wounded. A house in which an Armenian who had attempted to assassinate an officer had sought refuge was set on fire and the man burned alive.

Hang "President of Republic."
A tailor named Schultz, who had been elected president of the Estonian republic, has been captured and executed by the soldiers. The troops have captured the iron works at Ostrowiec, government of Radom, in Russian Poland, which had been occupied by the revolutionists as their headquarters. Many of the revolutionists were killed or wounded during the fight. The rest fled.

At Opatow, in Russian Poland, the troops fired upon and charged crowds for over an hour. Many persons were killed or wounded.

Witte To Save Russia.
In spite of the anarchy in every part of the empire, Premier de Witte declared: "I am determined to save Russia."

Premier de Witte made this declaration to a delegation headed by the mayor of St. Petersburg, which pleaded with him for a relaxation of the orders of the police against meetings in the interest of the electoral campaign.

The premier would not promise to do anything until after Jan. 22 (Red Sunday). He spoke bitterly of the failure of the moderates to give the government support, saying that upon their shoulders largely rests the burden of compelling the government to resort to repression. He added:

"The emperor in the manifesto of Oct. 30 at one stroke granted the people more rights than any monarch had ever before given, but you know the attitude which Russian society assumed."

"The government's appeals for confidence were rejected and every liberty granted was abused by the revolutionists. The permission to hold meetings was translated into license for street disturbances, and assemblies to plot against the life of the government and the industrial ruin of the country."

"I always have been opposed to repression, but the attitude of the moderates compelled me to adopt harsh measures. I am determined to save Russia."

union, followed with an address on "Co-operation of Farmers," which was also briefly discussed. After the appointment of committees the convention adjourned until afternoon, when the first business session will be held.

In the afternoon session Hon. Chas. Scott, of Rosedale, Miss., will speak on "Foreign Labor in the Cotton Fields." Hon. D. A. Tompkins, of Charlotte, N. C., on "Value of Manufactured Cotton compared to the Raw Product," and John D. Walker, president of the First National bank, Spartanburg, S. C., on "Closer Relations between Bankers and Farmers." There will also be an evening session at which addresses will be delivered by Hon. J. A. Brown, of Chattanooga, N. C., Walter Clark, president of the Mississippi division of the Southern Cotton association, and Hon. H. M. Jacobway, of Daranelle, Ark.

Many matters of the utmost importance to the cotton growers of the south, and in fact, the entire south, will be considered and discussed during the three days' session. The discussion will cover the importance of holding the balance of the unsold crop for fifteen cents, so as to bring the average of prices for the season as near twelve cents as possible; extending the organization of the Southern Cotton association; the importance of speedily bringing about direct trade relations between the spinners of the world and the cotton producers; the imperative need of securing facilities for handling the crop south by the erection of standard-built warehouses where cotton may be weighed and classified by expert managers and the receipts underwritten so as to make them negotiable in any financial center or where they can be bought by exporter or spinner and tendered for delivery of cotton at such time as it may be needed for consumption. In this way it would be possible to market the crop slowly and to regulate the supply so as to meet the legitimate demands of the spinners. This plan would tend to limit the range of speculation, avoiding the present wide fluctuations that are injurious both to the producers and consumers.

80,000 BUSHELS PICKLES SALTED

IMMENSE CROP BEING PREPARED
BY HOHENADEL CO.

AN ENORMOUS CORN PACKING

Many Barrels and Cans of Kraut Also Produced During Past Season at Local Factory.

With the exception of shipping operations, everything is quiet at the canning factory of the P. Hohenadel, Jr., company in Spring Brook. The season's runs on corn and kraut were finished some time ago and the processing and assorting of pickles has been suspended until the weather moderates. Orders for corn, bulk kraut and pickles are being filled regularly and the time for canned kraut is about here. The canned-kraut period is from March until summer, the supply of bulk kraut usually running out at the end of February and from then on it is impractical to keep great quantities of it on hand. The demand for this article of food lasts, however, until warm weather and the canned goods are consequently sold in large amounts for a few months ensuing.

2,400,000 Cans of Corn
An immense amount of corn was put in cans during the past season. The run opened about September 1 and lasted through October 15. During this time 2,400,000 cans were packed. Each can contains two pounds and thus makes a production of 4,800,000 pounds. The cans are placed in cases with a capacity of two dozen and the sold to the various wholesale grocery merchants and brokers in lots from 20,000 cases down. One order recently shipped was for 10,000 cases and came from Montgomery, Ward and company, Chicago. In many cases the output of the local manufactory during the season was 100,000.

4,000 Barrels and 480,000 Cans
This season's kraut packing aggregated 4,000 barrels and 480,000 cans. Each barrel contains hundreds of pounds and each can three pounds. The cans are sold in cases of two dozen and the number of cases is 20,000. The kraut run lasted about forty-five days, opening early in October and closing in the middle of the following month. While the work was practically completed in this time men are still engaged in placing labels on cans and packing cases. The same work is being done on what remains of the corn production.

80,000 Bushels of Pickles
While these two big packings of corn and kraut were being put up pickles were being salted in the vats at the local packing and canning stations at Shelburne, Monroe county, and Onalaska, La Crosse county. 45,000 bushels were placed in brine here, 15,000 at Shelburne and 20,000 at Onalaska. The Shelburne salting was shipped here during the latter part of December and up till near the end of 1905 much of the crop was being further processed and assorted. At present the factory is filled to its capacity, but when the warm weather again arrives the work of finishing the product will be taken up and as the supply of partially processed pickles diminishes the salting from Onalaska will be shipped here.

Begin Contracting Soon
Within a short time Superintendent Fred H. Beltharz will begin the campaign for the new season. Mr. Beltharz secures all the crop contracts for the local factory and, besides making the arrangements for all of the corn, cabbage and pickles that are grown in this vicinity he visits both Shelburne and Onalaska and in those districts draws up many contracts.

JUST A TRIVIAL INCIDENT PLUS MAJESTY OF THE LAW

Two Office Chairs Taken from Hayes
Block by Former Insurance Man.
Returned Yesterday.

Two dollar-and-a-quarter office chairs taken from the Hayes block to the Jackson block yesterday through the instrumentality of the law and Janitor George Flaherty. Before the law and Constable Bogardus came to his assistance, however, Mr. Flaherty was unable to transfer the merchandise. It appears that a former insurance agent who removed from the Hayes block some time ago and rented a portion of Whitehead & Matheson's office took this furniture alleged to be the property of the Hayes Bros., with him. When the janitor called Mr. Whitehead refused to release the chairs because he knew nothing of the circumstances and the man who had brought them into the office was not in the city. So the matter had to be taken into Justice Reeder's court and settled.

SAYS WELLMAN WILL SUCCEED

Geological Director Believes North Pole Project Practicable.
Washington, Jan. 11.—Theoretically the Wellman-Chicago Record-Herald polar expedition project is feasible, said Director Charles D. Walcott of the geological survey. "The idea I have to do with rocks and bowditch, and am not an aerodynamic expert; it seems to me that if the atmospheric conditions are favorable and a practical dirigible airship is used there is no reason why the pole should not be reached."

TODAY BIRTHDAY OF NATION'S ARCHITECT

Alexander Hamilton Was Born Just a Hundred and Forty-Seven Years Ago.

Today is the anniversary of the birth of Alexander Hamilton, one of the framers of the constitution of the United States and patriotic organizations throughout the country are observing the event by memorial meetings, banquets, and other ways.

The name of Alexander Hamilton is one of those indelibly engraved upon the pages of this country's history. He was born in the West Indies on January 11, 1757, and was still a comparatively young man, when he became closely identified with some of the most important events of that eventful period of this country's history. His was one of the master minds of the epoch which developed our constitutional government. To his brilliant and far-seeing brain the country owes its financial system. During the period of the war and the subsequent dark years Hamilton was one of the pillars of strength. His versatility was only equalled by the strength of his grasp of matters which concerned the colonies. The history of the world has produced no character that is the counterpart of this remarkable man. He was a soldier, statesman, financier, political economist and scholar.

During one of the most peaceful periods of his eventful and stormy life, in the year 1800 to 1801 Hamilton built himself a fine mansion in what was then the suburbs of New York. He built the house out of timber presented to him by General Phil. Schuyler, and out from General Schuyler's land, at the headquarters of the Hudson river, on a piece of land, now traversed by 123rd street and Convent avenue. There it stood for over one hundred years, withstanding the destructive effects of time and climate. A few years ago the board of aldermen of Washington Heights, as that district is called, decided to extend 143rd street and the "Grange," as Hamilton's mansion was called, would have been torn down, to make room for the street, had not a thoughtful real estate man purchased the ground and house and prevented the cutting through of the street. He moved the house to the center of the block to permit the cutting through of the street and later he moved the house again a block further south, to a site adjoining St. Luke's church, to make room for a row of modern apartments which were built upon the land formerly surrounding the "Grange." Since then the fort has been made to preserve the "Grange" as a national memorial and to create a small park around it.

Wm. Vedder of 9 Ingersoll Avenue, Schenectady, Tells How Father John's Medicine Cured His Lung And Built Up His Strength.

"Last fall, I had a severe attack of pneumonia, and was confined to the house for four months. At the end of that time, I was still suffering from a hard, racking cough, from which the doctors could give me no relief. I tried everything I could think of or hear of but with no beneficial result. In this condition, I returned to work. One day, a shopmate who noticed how I was suffering, advised me to try a bottle of Father John's Medicine. I did so and began to get relief at once. I was soon cured of the cough, and the cough might turn. I continued taking the medicine until I had used twelve bottles. When I began to take the medicine, I was in a very weak condition; but I gained in strength rapidly and am now as strong as ever. I believe my cure was due entirely to Father John's Medicine and I heartily recommend it to all who are similarly afflicted." (Signed) William Vedder, 9 Ingersoll Avenue, Schenectady, N. Y.

GOOD RETURNS FROM ONE ACRE OF BEETS

Vernon County Farmer Furnishes
His Local Paper with Expense and Pay Accounts.

A Vernon county farmer raising his first crop of sugar beets this year, says an exchange, furnished his local paper with an itemized cost of raising as follows:

I have just received my check for nearly an acre of sugar beets raised by myself. I planted exactly an acre, but saved about a ton for the brood sows, calves, chickens, and for table use. They make very good table beets but need boiling long and are hard. The hens eat them well if chopped raw and they shell out baskets of eggs. They must be a valuable beet for cows. The tops lasted nearly a month for cow feed and I believe were worth a ton of bran for milk, or fifteen dollars. They should be piled in small piles to keep long and should be fed sparingly to cows or they will act as a cathartic. The cost of raising an acre of beets is considerable. We neglected to keep an exact account, but know it took about fourteen days' work to weed the acre. The plowing, harrowing and planting cost about $25, the seed, lifting and topping another $20, and the hauling $5 for men alone. With hired help at $1.50 a day it cost me about $55 to do the work. I had credited to me 29,200 pounds of beets, 57,232 less seed and freight, $6.10 I received in cash $66.32. There was 5 per cent tare, or 1,540 pounds on the cartload for dirt, etc. The beets tested 14.5 per cent sugar and the top price was $4.95. I sowed seed rather late owing to wet soil and had more weeding than the average farmer to do. I believe sugar beet raising is a commendable industry and should be tried further in this vicinity. There is not the big money in it there is in tobacco some years, but it is a safer industry which fits in well with other crops and other work.

The Cigarmakers' International union will soon hold a referendum election of national officers. Indications are that all of the present incumbents will have opposition.

Bower City Bank Directors: Directors of the Bower City bank for the ensuing year have been elected as follows: George C. Sutherland, R. M. Bostwick, Jr., A. E. Bingham, James Shearer, William McWay, J. W. Sale, and Charles L. Valentine.

EXPANSION OF SOUTHERN TRADE.

The wonderful industrial progress made by the south in the year just closed, is emphasized by the fact that the southland leads all the rest of the country in the proportion of banks established, as shown by recent reports of the United States treasury department.

Promoters of such enterprises never locate in an unprosperous, unprosperous community. That fact in itself is a recognition of the progress being made in all industrial lines, and the development of these industries, vast though they have been, are in a measure small, as compared with what could have been accomplished if the means were at hand of giving the proper sort of publicity to the various enterprises. The latter need has demonstrated to one of the largest general advertising agencies the importance of maintaining a thoroughly equipped office on the ground.

Nelson Chesman & Co. of St. Louis, General Newspaper and Magazine Advertising Agents, have established a branch office at Chataanooga, Tenn., and will do a general newspaper and magazine advertising business throughout the south. In these days of rapid-fire service distance counts immensely, and the location selected for this branch of the Chesman Agency not only facilitates the work of securing desirable contracts but also insures quick and unusually efficient distribution of copy for customers in distant parts of the country.

This progressive policy on the part of one of the oldest, most highly respected and most substantial agencies in the country illustrates the broad lines of development in the advertising business, and is likewise indicative of the far-sightedness of a concern which has long been firmly rooted in the greatest centers of advertising activity—New York, Chicago and St. Louis.

It was first decided to open the branch in connection with, and to facilitate the handling of the immense volume of business embraced in the million dollar contract recently secured from the Chataanooga Medicine Co., makers of Wine of Cardui and Theodore's Black Draught.

But the possibilities of the south's rapidly growing business induced them to make of the Chataanooga office a principal branch of the company, with one of the general officers, Secretary Richard Pendergast in charge, and place the immense facilities of the company, the first general advertising agents to enter the southern field, at the disposal of advertisers in the manufacturing and other industrial lines of that section.

Dr. Williams' Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. ## = FORTY YEARS AGO =

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday, January 11, 1866.—Eloped—Miss Taber, of Racine, who took the first premium at the last State Fair, was an excellent rider, but because she was best horse, recently ran away to Ohio with a widower, against the protestations of her parents, and married him.

Burning of the State Reform School.—The destruction of the State Reform School at Waukesha by fire last night, is a serious loss to the people of the State and the class of young persons who have found a temporary home there. The building was worth $40,000 and there were 150 boys occupying it. The building was insured for $12,000.

Judge Gibbs, of this city, who is secretary of the Board of Regents, went out to Waukesha this P. M., to look after the affairs of this institution.

A Good Hotel.—A first class hotel has been needed at Madison, and now it has it in the Vilas House, formerly known as the Capitol House. Some $35,000 has been laid out upon the building and in furniture during the past season, and but little is left to be desired, as far as comfort and neatness are concerned. The spacious and elegant dining hall has been rearranged for the convenience of the guests, and old Epicurus himself could desire no better fare than he would find upon the well-spread tables at the Vilas. And as for beds, they are all new, clean and bugless, in which even a candidate for legislative office can be lured into dreams so sweet that he would forget the false promises of politicians and invoke blessings upon the head of him who invents sleep. We occupied the same room, not but recently, with Mr. Booth of the Daily Wisconsin, and we passed into the shadowy land of forgetfulness, we heard him murmuring to himself this touching parody:

"Lightly they'll talk when my money is gone. And o'er my lean wallet upbraid me, But nothing I'll weep; if they let me sleep on."

In the bed where this Parson has laid me. Long live the Vilas and the affable fellows who turn its crank."

Charges.—Representatives Townsend and Esch, authors of the bill reported last year, having suggested amendments here and there. Mr. Townsend, it is announced, will make the opening speech supporting the bill. It cannot be taken up until after the statehood fight is over. The democratic members of the committee also will bring in a measure. Mr. Hepburn's bill corresponds in most of its details to the bill introduced in the senate by Senator Dooliver of Iowa, and which will be discussed in the senate committee on Friday.

Lodge Consular Bill.

Washington, Jan. 11.—The senate committee on foreign relations has authorized Senator Lodge, author of the bill for the reorganization of the consular service, to report the measure favorably as amended. The committee amendments are sweeping. As reported the bill provides for the grading of consuls general and consuls and appoints the president to transfer appointees to all classes according to the interest of the service. It makes seven classes of consuls: general at salaries ranging from $12,000 for London and Paris, down to $3,000 for the lowest. Consuls are divided into ten classes, ranging from $8,000 for Liverpool to $2,000 for consulates of the lowest grades. The grade of commercial agents is abolished.

To Mark Confederate Graves.

Washington, Jan. 11.—The senate passed a bill appropriating $200,000 to be used in suitably marking the graves of the confederate soldiers who died in northern prisons during the civil war.

Enlarges Justice Bureau Power.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Representative Jenkins of Wisconsin, chairman of the judiciary committee of the house, has presented a bill drawn by Attorney General Moody which would give the department of justice the right to send a representative from Washington to take complete charge of any case in a federal court or before a United States commissioner or grand jury.

Overstreet Is Disgusted.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Representative Overstreet of Indiana, secretary of the republican congressional campaign committee, has announced that the president's failure to allow him to name Frank D. Stalnaker as surveyor of the port of Indianapolis had discouraged him so badly that he would not serve on the committee. The plum was captured by Senator Beveridge for L. G. Rothschild.

Moody Need Not Apply.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Representative John Sharp Williams' resolution requesting the attorney general to inform the house whether criminal prosecutions have been instituted against corporations or individuals found guilty of entering into unlawful combinations in connection with the Northern Securities case has been fixed up by the house committee on judiciary so that Mr. Moody need not reply if he finds it incompatible with public interest.

Baron on Private Cars.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Representative Prince of Illinois introduced a bill which makes it unlawful for any common carrier engaged in interstate commerce to use or permit to be used on its line any car not owned by it or some other such common carrier. This legislation is to take effect from and after the first day of January. Mr. Prince takes the position that if private car lines are not given to the law as the owners of such car lines have declared, they are private carriers and trespassers upon the public highways.

Keifer Opposes Concession.

Washington, Jan. 11.—A vigorous speech in favor of the Philippine tariff bill by Mr. Dinkell of Pennsylvania opened the proceedings in the house Wednesday. It was followed by several others against the measure, most noticeable of which was a two-hour address by the veteran statesman, Mr. Keifer of Ohio, an ex-speaker who returns to the house after a retirement of 20 years. Mr. Keifer bespoke a "stand pat" doctrine of the most pronounced type and said he should oppose the pending bill because it was a concession to democratic principles. His speech was replete with recollections of earlier days and received the closest attention and liberal applause from both sides of the chamber.

Push Hepburn Bill.

Railroad Rate Regulation Measure Is to Be Reported Favorably.

Washington, Jan. 11.—At a meeting of the republican members of the House committee on interstate commerce it was decided that the Hepburn railroad rate regulation bill should be reported favorably. It will be subjected to one or two minor

Pugilistic Talk.

Fitzsimmons Didn't Know When to Stop Fighting.

The same old prize ring story has been illustrated by Bob Fitzsimmons—the old, old story, the story that was old when the pyramids were new. Bob did not know when to stop fighting. Like Napoleon, he thought he could keep on conquering until death. Napoleon "took the count" at Waterloo, and Fitzsimmons "got his" in California in the fiasco with "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien.

O'Brien never was a first class fighter. True, he whipped a long string of slow going Englishmen, but the Britishers do not compare with the American scappers. If Fitz had had any life at all left in him he would have defeated O'Brien in five time. But what's the use of "filing" it's all over, and thousands of people are "sore" on Fitzsimmons for perpetrating so colossal a bluff. He knew all the time that he could not do anything to O'Brien, but nevertheless the Cornishman persisted in circulating misleading reports as to his condition. Fitz played for the loser's share, and he wanted that loser's share to be as large as possible. So he kept his staff of press agents busy sending out yarns of the sort that would attract a big crowd to the bout—the bigger the crowd the bigger the loser's end.

Moral.—Beware of tinsel old timers, whether they are pugilists, faro dealers, race track touts or life insurance presidents. The methods of all are very much alike, but watch the insurance presidents a little closer than the rest.

Fitzsimmons in his prime was the greatest fighter in the world at his weight, and more's the pity that he should have made himself a party to a match like that with O'Brien. His brilliant work in the ring in years past won him a host of admirers. With the exception of Jim Jeffries, he was the strongest fighter that ever appeared in America.

Fitzsimmons was born in Elston, Cornwall, England, in June, 1860, and he fought in America for the first time in 1889, when he defeated Dick Ellis in three rounds.

His important fights were as follows: 1889.—Won, Billy McCarthy, nine rounds. Knockout, Arthur Upham, five rounds. Lost, Jim Hall, four rounds.

1891.—Won, "Black" Pearl, four rounds. Knockout, Jack Dempsey, thirteen rounds. Abe Conkle, two rounds.

1892.—Won, Peter Maher, twelve rounds. Knockout, James Farrell, two rounds.

1893.—Won, James J. Corbett, Carson Island, eleven rounds. Knockout, Jeff Thorne, Chicago, one round.

1900.—Won, Jim Daly, Philadelphia, one round. Knockout, Ed Dundhorst, Brooklyn, two rounds. Gus McGinn, New York, two rounds. Tom Sharkey, Coney Island, two rounds.

1902.—Knocked out by Jim Jeffries, San Francisco, eight rounds.

1903.—Knocked out by George Gardner, San Francisco, twenty rounds.

Now that O'Brien is a claimant for heavyweight honors in addition to Marvin Hart, Hugo Kelly, Jack (Twin) Sullivan, Mike Schreck and many others who have heretofore met the Philadelphia conqueror of Fitzsimmons.

The most eager of the lot is Hugo Kelly, who is the only fighter besides young Peter Jackson to get a decision over the shifty Quaker City boxer. These men may have some difficulty in getting on with O'Brien, as his attentions are undoubtedly turned to clinching matches with Marvin Hart and Tommy Ryan, in order to have a clear ring to Jeffries' crown.

Out of the lot of light heavies and middleweights who are anxious to get into the ring with O'Brien Kelly's friends claim he is entitled to first chance. He has met the Philadelphia on four occasions, the first being a draw; the second he lost, the third was a no decision affair in the Quaker City, and the last he won. Schreck met defeat at the hands of O'Brien twice. Kelly secured a draw with Schreck at Indianapolis.

The Gazette published an editorial on the state university, a few days ago which called out the following letter from Willard G. Bleyer, press representative of the state school. The exhibits referred to are from the $10,000 commission appointed by the last legislature to investigate financial conditions, and from President Van Hise of the university.

The commission find that the school will have money enough for current expenses when available resources mature, but no explanation or defense is offered for borrowing money from other funds to meet current expenses.

President Van Hise presents a copy of a detailed financial statement, a duplicate of which was sent to the legislature, in which it appears that borrowed money from other funds was anticipated.

The Gazette maintains, as it always has, that the state university should be treated the same as all state institutions, so far as financial support is concerned, and should be conducted on business principles. The mill tax should be abolished and cash appropriated. When this is done there will be no delusion, and $10,000 investigating committees can be dispensed with. Mr. Bleyer's letter follows:

To the Editor:

In the Janesville Daily Gazette of Friday, January 5, I noticed an editorial entitled "The State University," from which it is plainly evident that the writer is completely misinformed in regard to the financial condition of the institution. As I know it is the policy of your paper to publish the facts in this as in all other matters, I desire to call your attention to these inaccuracies, and trust that you will bring them to the attention of the writer who prepared the editorial in question. In order to make the matter perfectly clear, I enclose copies of several articles bearing on this subject.

The most important document in regard to the financial condition of the university is the complete report of the sub-committee on education appointed by the legislature in special session to investigate the financial condition. (Exhibit A.) This committee consisted of Senator Thomas Morris and Assemblyman J. S. Donald, and Duncan McGregory, the latter was quoted in the Janesville Gazette and other papers as saying, before he had investigated the subject, that he feared "the university was like a man trying to live on champagne on a larger beer income."

While the Gazette editorial states that the university is in a bankrupt condition, the report of this legislative committee states, "according to the budget for the present year it is estimated that the present appropriations for the university are ample and will meet all expenses in maintaining the institution, and will leave a balance on hand for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906."

The report also points out that "the two-sevenths mills tax, together with a special appropriation of $200,000 both provided for by chapter 320 of the laws of 1905, it is estimated will provide enough money to pay for the permanent improvements above mentioned (the purchase of land and preparation for additional buildings) over and above the amount required for other purposes" (See Exhibit A.)

The editorial urges that a budget of expenses be prepared, and that the appropriation be made to meet the same. At the last regular session of the legislature President Van Hise presented a complete budget covering many typewritten pages, showing what it proposed to do with every dollar of the appropriation. Again in his recent letter to the special session of the legislature, (see exhibit B page 2) he offers to show to any member of the legislature the complete budget of all university expenses for the current year. Such a budget is prepared annually by President Van Hise, is adopted by the board of regents, and is always open to inspection by the legislature.

In regard to the statement that "appropriations have been diverted into channels for which they were not intended," permit me to call your attention to President Van Hise's statement to the legislature, (exhibit B) in which he explains each expenditure and when and how it was authorized by the legislature.

A careful perusal of these documents will make it evident to the writer of the editorial that the university authorities were fully authorized by two separate and distinct acts of the last legislature to draw the university income in advance of the tax collection in February. He will also see that instead of being bankrupt, the university, as the report of the legislative committee clearly shows, will have a much larger balance on hand than it has had for the past two years, at the end of the fiscal year. He will also see that every dollar expended is fully accounted for.

The university authorities always have been willing to have the university affairs of this nature given the fullest publicity, and I shall be glad to furnish you at any time any additional information that you may desire. I trust that you will present this matter to those responsible for the editorial, and I hope that the true state of affairs may be presented correctly to the many readers of the Gazette who are interested in the university but were misled as to its condition by the editorial in question.

Yours very truly,

WILLARD G. BLEYER.

El Paso Herald: The agricultural department has discovered that barbed wire fence rusts because it is left out in the rain. American farmers are too careless.

Steel Kings On Deck.

Bryan's Commoner: When the chorus appears on the stage the steel kings are not visible to the naked eye, but like the politician's overcoat in the expense bill, they are here just the same.

A Small Distinction.

Chicago Tribune: The principal difference between hazing and football is that if a man is hurt while playing football the other fellows do not run away and leave him.

"Minimizing Athletics."

Madison Journal: The university faculty is advised by a special committee to minimize athletics, in fact it may mean the abolition of football for a term of years. Wise radical action of some sort is demanded if the institution is to recover the respect of those whose censorship of national athletics is conceded.

Woman—The Great Direct Cause.

Milwaukee Free Press: The famous Hungarian professor who declares woman to be "the great direct cause" and "the second greatest force in history" may feel reasonably certain that he came within one of it, anyhow.

He Probably Said "Beer."

Madison Democrat: We are told that Mayor Rose of Milwaukee has been urging the Arizonians to resist combined statehood "with bayonets if need be," but this report doubtless is a mistake. He probably said beer.

Big Injun Not Bloodthirsty?

Oshkosh Northwestern: The New Tribune remarks that Mr. La Follette is now one of the "big injuns" in the United States senate, but it is certainly a little time before he goes after any scalps.

A Comedy of Names.

Cherryvale Republican: Cherryvale reporters are puzzled as to what to do in writing up a coming wedding, that of Miss Simmons and Mr. Stuck. If the headline read "Simmons-Stuck" it is a reflection on Mr. Stuck and it is changed to "Stuck-Simmons" it is as bad.

Impertinent Even to Expect.

Chicago Record-Herald: The courts have decided that the policyholders have no interest in the Equitable Life Assurance Society's surplus. The interest of the policyholders, ceased when they paid the premiums, and it was really impertinent of them to expect anything back.

Asks A Life Sentence.

Radice Journal: With men sentenced to terms of imprisonment for revolting assaults upon women, often ending in death, there are always good chances for pardon because of equally revolting sentimentality. Let the law everywhere make the sentence life with no possible chance for pardon.

Only Vegetarian There.

Rockford Register-Gazette: Although Senator La Follette of Wisconsin is no stranger in Washington, having served three terms in the house of representatives, his physical appearance continues to attract attention. The senator is a short, round man, with a great head. His body is long, but his legs are short. When he is sitting down, he looks to be nearly six feet tall, but when he stands he is not much more than five feet six. He is a student of Shakespeare and the only vegetarian in the senate.

Municipal Ownership in Kenosha.

Sheboygan Journal: Sheboygan has committed itself for a municipal water works system, and there will be considerable satisfaction for the advocates of that kind of public service. In last Saturday's news from Kenosha, the water works plant in that city, which was taken over from a private company ten years ago, has paid off in that time $45,000 of its indebtedness, besides giving the citizens the lowest rates of any city in the state where municipal ownership does not exist. If this can be done in Kenosha, it undoubtedly can be done in Sheboygan. The purchase price is considerably larger here, but the consumers are more numerous.

Claims He Has Backbone.

Stevens Point Journal: The Madison Journal esteems Senator Hatten very highly but seems to doubt if he has quite enough "backbone" for the office of governor. Perhaps our Madison contemporary has not seen the senator placed in a position where it was necessary for him to show independence. We have, and at the close of one interview upon which his political future might have depended the other fellows had no doubt about the rigidity of his spinal column. Senator Hatten is neither a political trickster nor a mountebank. He does not go about blowing his own trumpet from the house-tops. He is naturally modest and retiring; but at the same time he is a man of excellent abilities, a good reasoner, well informed in public affairs and honest. He is therefore a good man for governor or for any other position to which he may be called.

Absurd Extreme Advocated.

Evening Wisconsin: The reported disposition of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin to abolish intercollegiate football for a period of years deserves encouragement by friends of education. Pseudo-athletics forms too large an interest in universities at the present time, and is associated with too much that is demoralizing. The effective way to reform this condition is to reform it altogether.

The faculty committee which has recommended an interregnum of football as at present played consists of men who are as alert as any could be to the practical interests of the university, and who cannot be suspected of lack of sympathy with the recreational requirements of young people. Dean Birge is the chairman of the committee. His conferees are Profs. Munro, Turner, Slichter, Trowbridge and Jackson.

The objections to football are that it is too engrossing, necessitating neglect of their studies by those who are in training for team work; that it is at present played too fiercely, involving painful and sometimes dangerous accidents to players; that it is too expensive, and that the need of a large income to support it combines with the intense rivalry between colleges as an incentive to transactions of a questionable character in procuring strong players.

More Kindly Disposed.

Green Bay Gazette: Senator La Follette doubtless enjoys reading if he can spare the time—the comment of Wisconsin newspapers in connection with his advent in the senate. In even those papers which have opposed his course while governor there has been general admission that "Bo" has the ability to take a prominent part in the deliberations of the senate and there is a disposition to wish him well in his new career that must be a welcome relief from the criticism which has been handed out to him so liberally during the past few years. In connection with the assumption made by some editors that Senator La Follette will become "conservative" in his new environment, the Appleton Post says:

"We hazard the prediction—although the wisest may have fathered the thought—that the senator who is not in some respects be recognized as the governor that was. This forecast does not, however, imply the belief that Mr. La Follette's views upon the leading questions to which he stands committed will undergo any change nor that less vigor than heretofore will characterize his advocacy of them. In the final analysis, the success of representative government necessarily involves considerations of expediency and compromise. The lawmaker, imbued with the righteousness of his convictions, who aims to impress his own views upon the legislation of his time is worthy of all commendation, provided at last he is moved to accept the nearest approximation to them possible. This latter has not been the disposition of Mr. La Follette hitherto, in his capacity as governor and leader of his party in Wisconsin. Indeed, his tendency has been toward wrecking the very instrumentalities of representative government when opposed to his will."

In his new field of activity, however, we believe he will soon come to realize the fact, if he does not start with it, that he is only one of a legislative body of ninety members, with whom persuasion as he knows the art may accomplish much but that, as he has practiced it in a smaller way, absolutely nothing, and that he will regulate his course accordingly."

KICKERS' KOLUM

Editor Gazette: I see in a recent Gazette that Secretary Shaw announces that the treasury department will anticipate the payment of interest on government bonds, and pay it before it is due. Have you seen any notice that the payment of soldiers' pensions are to be anticipated and paid before they are due? I only ask for information, as I don't remember of ever having seen such a notice. Editor Gazette: Did the article of January 10 concerning the stars contain a misstatement or a typographical error and what are the facts? How could Saturn be in Taurus, near the Pleiades, and set at 8 o'clock p. m. when Taurus does not set till 4 o'clock a. m.? Editor Gazette: Are the city street and sidewalk inspectors all dead or do they merely rest in that hybernatic condition, such as which comes with winter? Judging from the condition of some of the city's sidewalks the entire force has been going around with one eye shut ever since weather struck us which has produced ice. If anyone disbelieves the point of slipperiness on walks supposed to be under city care let him insure his life and then attempt the ascent or descent of the walk through the court house park. Individuals cannot be blamed for careless attention to their property walks if the city's example is so glaringly rash.

Announcement was made at Kenosha of the engagement of Miss Edith Murray Brown and Walter James Cavanagh. Miss Brown is a daughter of Charles C. Brown, cashier of the First National bank of that city. Mr. Cavanagh was for two years the captain of the University of Chicago football team. He is a son of Attorney James Cavanagh.

Judge Hastings of Green Bay has decided for the Business Men's association in a test case, brought against F. A. Diekmann, a manufacturer, to collect $30 in dues. The question involved was the validity of a verbal resignation. When the suit started other members were involved to the extent of $600 on the same technicality, but most of accounts have been settled.

First Church Bells.

Bells of large size were first impressed into the service of the church about the year 400, by Paulinus, Bishop of Nola, in Campania, and hence "campana," the Latin name of bell. Another century and a half elapsed before they were adopted by the church of France.

DUCKS CAME WHEN NEEDED

Minnesota Homesteaders Out of Meat Provided For in Providential Manner.

The walking south through town of a wild goose that had become exhausted in flight, or wounded, recalls the incident of a few years ago when a wild duck in its swift pilgrimage south at night flew through a window in the old courthouse into a room where a party of card players were enjoying themselves leaving them in the dark, as the bird struck the lamp and put out the light. One or two of the party would not play after that, believing that the duck had been sent by the Lord as a warning against card playing.

Another odd incident of a similar nature, says the St. Paul Dispatch, occurred south of Seneca, in Faulk county, when, on a dark, stormy night, while a family of homesteaders were lamenting their ill-fortune of having no meat in the house, they were startled to hear heavy clouds against the outside of the building, when investigation with a lantern disclosed the fact that wild ducks had flown against it and had fallen to the ground to be easily picked up in their dazed condition. This settled the meat question, and there were some who figured that the ducks had been providentially misguiding that night in their journey south.

Russian Peasant Character.

The Russian peasant is not trained to work. He feels to rest in it. He will not labor for more than is necessary to provide for the next few days. For the land is not really his own, and therefore, he cannot love it as a husbandman should. His whole character has been enervated by enslavement and bad government, which rendered him less than ever capable of struggling with bad times.

Manager for May Irwin: Lawrence J. Anhalt, business manager for May Irwin and her company who appear here on the evening of Jan. 22, was in the city today. Mr. Anhalt was formerly advance man for "The Dostons" and preceded them here on the occasion of their last visit. He started out to manage Barnabee and a company in a new opera last season, but the aged star was unfortunately enough to break his leg a few weeks after the opening and has not since been able to appear on the stage. Regarding his present attraction Mr. Anhalt says: "Of course no one will want to miss Barnabee, but way down in their hearts you know and I know that May Irwin is the party they are all most honestly anxious to see."

FALLS ONTO ICE HOOK; MAY DIE

JOHN WILKINSON INJURED AT LOWER ICE HOUSE.

IS AT THE PALMER HOSPITAL

Suffered Serious Scalp Wound and a Depressed Fracture of the Skull.

Slipping from a piece of ice on which he was standing while at work at the lower icehouse this morning, John Wilkinson, in the employ of the City Ice company as a harvester, fell seriously injured and was seriously injured that the result may be death, though some hopes of his recovery are entertained. The wound was on the left side of the head and bled freely. The man was hastily taken to the office of Dr. W. H. Palmer and there Surgeons Palmer and Farnsworth dressed the injury. The scalp wound proved to be long and deep and the examination also revealed a depressed fracture of the skull. A portion of the bone was driven against the brain and in removing it a hemorrhage set in. The physicians bent all efforts to stop the flow of blood and to assist in this Wilkinson was taken in the Russell ambulance to the Palmer Hospital, where the best of care could be given. At half past two o'clock it seemed that the hemorrhage was under control, but should this break forth again the man's chances for life would be slim.

LACK OF SNOW HAS DELAYED THE WORK AT SHADE FACTORY

Delivery of Lumber Has Been Retarded—Local Manufacturer Now Producing a "Chair Hammock" for Porch Use.

By the scarcity of snow in the northern woods the delivery of lumber to the Hough Shade corporation here has been greatly delayed this winter and resultantly the manufacturing season has been put back about fifteen days. The factory began running on porch shades on the first of December as usual, but the supply of raw material has been short and instead of operating to the capacity for the fifteenth of this month as had been planned a full force of hands will be at work until the first of February. This will of course cause a rush in the shipping department for a time but the interference will not be serious. The number of hands employed in the plant when running "full blast" is seventy. The shipment of shades has already commenced. The orders so far filled are all for the Pacific coast but it will not be long before goods will be sent to agents all over the country. The shipping season is at its height in the latter part of February and early portion of March.

A New Product
To keep the weavers and foreman of the shop busy the year around a recently developed product, for which the patent is pending, is being made. This is a chair hammock and goes under the name of "Vudor" Swing Hammock. It is very simple of construction, but exceedingly comfortable. It consists of a rectangular wooden frame, the longer sides of which are slightly bent, covered with a hammock netting. By ropes from the four corners this is hung to the ceiling of a porch at any angle and with the aid of a pillow for the head makes a most delightful out-of-door chair. A trapeze footrest is attached to one end and with this the chair can be easily swung. Thus all the comfort of a luxurious easy chair, together with the pleasurable movement of a hammock, are combined in a light porch swing. When not in use they occupy no space to speak of, are simply hung upon the wall. At present fifteen people are engaged in the chair hammock department and sixty articles are being put out daily. The run on these was opened September 15 last and will extend throughout the year. The chair hammock has never before been upon the market and owing to its simplicity and comfort, promises to be most popular.

Factory Notes
A new switch-track has recently been laid to the new building, warehouse number 2.
An intercommunicating phone system, connecting all departments and rooms with each other and office, has recently been installed.
In the booklet, which the company will put out this year there is a picture of the White House, showing the porch shades, produced at the local factory, shielding the piazzas from the hot rays of old Sol.

LOCAL LACONICS

Taxes High in Tokio: Taxation in Japan is 15 per cent according to a letter recently received by Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Lowell from their daughter, Mrs. C. V. Hubbard, who is residing in Tokio. Besides paying $15 every $100 valuation to help defray the expenses of the recent war, soft coal is costing $7.50 and meat and groceries and all other necessities are very high.

Are Seeking a Teacher: William Brinkman, W. J. Miller, and Peter Drafahl, who compose the school board of District No. 4 of the town of Rock, are looking for a teacher to take the primary room in that locality. Miss Soper, the former instructor, is said to have taken French leave last Friday, giving the school fathers no warning whatever of her intended departure.

Cornau Hurt in Texas: Word has been received here by friends of Mr. and Mrs. William Cornau and R. J. Whitton and daughter, who recently moved from Rock to New Birmingham, Texas, that William Cornau, formerly landlord of the present Empire hotel in this city, suffered a severe fracture of his left arm as the result of a fall from a load of furniture.

Rock Co. Bank Changes: Stanley Woodruff, formerly in charge of the second books, has succeeded J. H. Balch as head bookkeeper at the Rock County National bank. The position recently held by Mr. Woodruff is to be taken by Fred Palmer, who has been bookkeeper at the Janesville Carriage Works. Victor Whitton leaves Saturday to take a position with the Skinner Silk Co. of Chicago and Edward Hyzer is to succeed him as messenger.

Auditing the Books: J. B. Humphrey and Ensign Ransom are engaged in the work of auditing the books of the La Prairie Fire Insurance Co. The annual report shows that the company has in policies a total of $2,000,162.20.

Jailed for Jamboree: Frank Morris, the man who tried to give a sleight-of-hand performance for the education of wayfarers on Milwaukee street Tuesday noon and who was subsequently hurried to the lock-up in a grocery wagon, was released yesterday on promise that he would set out at once for Stoughton, where work was supposed to be awaiting him. Two hours later word came that he was beastly drunk again and howling like a hyena. This morning he was given 15 days in the county jail. John Mosher, an old offender, was given 20 days.

New Incorporation: Articles of incorporation for the Bicknell Manufacturing & Supply Co. of Janesville have been filed with the register of deeds. The object of organization as outlined in the papers is to manufacture hand and power iron and wood-working machinery, mill and farmers' supplies, etc. The capital stock is $25,000 divided into 250 shares. H. S. Bicknell and A. E. Aspinwall of Ft. Atkinson are the incorporators.

Society..

Invited guests will participate in a private rollerskating party to be given at the West Side rink on Tuesday evening next. Harry McNamara and others are said to be responsible for this new departure in social diversions. The Imperial band will play and a very pleasant and eventful evening is anticipated. Whether or not the affair is to be "full-dress" appears to be undetermined as yet. Roller skating is all the go in several cities of Wisconsin this winter and in some of them it has almost entirely supplanted dancing.

At Assembly hall last evening a large band of merry-makers enjoyed the first masquerade ball of the year, given under the auspices of the National Fraternal League. There were a number of novel and beautiful costumes and prizes were awarded three of the couples. The grand march was held at 11 o'clock, but the festivities did not conclude until three this morning. Rehfeld's orchestra played.

There is every prospect of a large attendance at the benefit ball to be given by the Imperial band at Assembly hall next Monday evening. An orchestra of fourteen will play, the waltzes of the two-step numbers played by the entire band are certain to be popular.

Fifty ladies were entertained at six-handed euchre yesterday afternoon by the Mesdames Frank E. Smith, Wilson Lane, E. H. Peterson, and Miss Isabelle Smith, at the home of the first named on St. Lawrence Place. A dainty luncheon was served at six o'clock and the afternoon was thoroughly enjoyed by all of the participants. Miss Mae Boswick won the first prize and the consolation was awarded Mrs. Frank Blodgett.

Members of the Schumann club met with Mrs. John F. Sweeney at the Grand Hotel Tuesday evening. The program consisted entirely of Chopin compositions. Those who played were: Mesdames O. Tower, J. L. Wilcox, and J. F. Sweeney, and Miss Pearl Peters.

Last evening members of Wisconsin Lodge No. 14 and Janesville Lodge No. 90, I. O. O. F., and their families enjoyed the first of a series of dancing parties which are to be given by the two organizations this winter. The affair was held in the East Side hall and proved very enjoyable. The next dance will be given on Jan. 31 at the West Side hall.

BUS AND A STREET CAR IN COLLISION

Driver Charles Davis and a Traveling Salesman Injured—Accident Occurred This Morning.

In a collision between the Myers House bus and the Main street car of the Janesville Street Railway company this morning Charles Davis, driver of the carriage, sustained an injury to his head, J. P. Donohoe, a traveling salesman from South Bend, Ind., received a slight scalp wound and a gash over the eye and both vehicle and car were somewhat damaged. The accident happened shortly before seven o'clock at the corner of Academy and Milwaukee streets as the car driven by John Kelly was coming from the depots and the bus was going to the same place. The windows of the bus were broken and one side partially crushed in, while the car's damage was a demolished vestibule. Davis, hanging to the reins, was hurled violently to the ground, but luckily escaped anything more serious than the dislocation of one of the metacarpal bones of the hand. He was taken to the office of Dr. Edler and his injuries cared for. Donohoe, who was within the bus, was pitched against the side and several gashes were cut about his face. He was taken to the Myers House, where Dr. Gibson dressed his wounds. He will not be confined by the injuries.

James J. Hill, Empire Builder

Personal Side of a Railway Genius Now
In the Public Eye

Grand Old Adviser of the Northwest Is Gruff, but Kindly—Strict Disciplinarian Who Keeps Everything Moving—Omnivorous Reader, With a Wonderful Memory, and Widely Informed—How He Accomplished a Phenomenal Feat in Railroad Building

JAMES J. HILL, he was christened by his parents, but "Jim" Hill he has been christened by mankind. He has been called "The Wizard of the Northwest." He has also been called almost every other name in the category, many of them complimentary. These things have worried him not at all. He has gone on dreaming dreams and making them come true, building railroads, steamships, elevators and what not; talking to farmers, bankers, railroad men, and almost everybody else that needed talking to. He was born in Canada, but couldn't be kept there, and educated for the medical profession, but that would not hold him either. He started poor and had all sorts of adversities to meet, but what adversities to a man who dares to think big things and to do them? He has possessed the rare combination of enterprise tempered by economy, of genius governed by common sense. He has been accused of being a hard taskmaster, even to the point of injustice, but he brings efficiency into his system and achieves his ends. He is certainly a strict disciplinarian, but he makes disciplining count. He is charged with disciplining reformers and reformers of having little sympathy with popular movements and of achieving his purposes by almost any means, as in the Northern Pacific merger. If so, these are a part of the man and must be studied in finding the key to his empire building career.

The recent report of Mr. Hill's contemplated retirement and his emphatic things his notion has to go. He not only runs his roads, but tells people in the vicinity how to farm, how to conduct banking, how to get immigration and how to manage their towns.

Horny Handed Farmer.

Mr. Hill is such an omnivorous reader and has such a retentive memory that he knows almost everything, from the price of a rivet in a locomotive to the quality of a fine oil painting, and from the yield of a wheatfield to the way to run a steamboat. There may be objections to his knowledge, but I am not conscious of them, and neither is he. He is a horny handed farmer, so he knows all about that. He runs and owns every sort of river and ocean craft except battleships, so he is up on that. He is his own connoisseur in buying paintings, diamonds and other gems, so he is informed in that line. He knows so much about the history of foreign lands that he gave some Russians and Belgians who visited him points about their own countries that they had never heard of. He has been known to tell his oldest engineers how to run their locomotives and to tell the builders how to make these great machines. When a man once tried to sell him some locomotives Hill showed him that his price was too high, telling him in detail the cost of every component part, from bolts to driving wheels and from whistle to cow catcher. At another time when his special train was passing through a wheatfield Hill asked one of his men to estimate the yield, and when he failed to do so estimated he ought not to have done. Now nothing gets away from him.

Expert at Shoving Freight.

After reaching this country the boy fooled around in the east till he lost all his money, then struck out for the west. It is said he tramped into St. Paul without a dollar in his pocket. Somehow all these captains of industry do that way—walk into town without a cent. After they have been on the ground long enough to let their marvelous instincts get into play most everybody else walks out of town with out a cent. The captain of industry has it all. It took Hill a long time to learn the game of high finance, but when he did learn it the public pocketbook knew that it was either an annexation or a foot race. In the meantime he was first a roustabout on a Mississippi steamboat and then a mud clerk. Now a mud clerk is a man who stands around at the loading and unloading of goods, occasionally taking a hand and rustling a box or a barrel himself. It is averred that Jim Hill became an expert at shoving freight even before he had a railroad to shove it over. He kept at mud clerking several years, but all the time he was gritting his teeth and resolving that he would not work for other people forever. Now everybody is working for him.

Cy Warman says that Hill never got out of the lowly walks of life until he received an inheritance of a few hundred dollars from home, but this may be only another of Warman's railroad romances. At any rate, Hill got possession of some steamboats and ran them up the Red River of the North. Then he became a railroad agent at St. Paul and worked a scheme of reforming things in the traffic generally. Everybody regarded his plan as so commercial that he was generally called "Crazy Jim" Hill those days, but when he succeeded the name was dropped. A successful crazy man is a genius.

Two Streaks of Rust.

Shortly after this the St. Paul and Pacific railroad was on the verge of bankruptcy. It had a large name, but that was the only big thing about it except its debts. The road itself was two streaks of rust, ending no place in particular. Originally it was intended to push it through to Manitoba or even to the coast, but the thing had become discouraged after 200 or 300 miles and stopped in the middle of a prairie. "Crazy Jim" Hill sized up that dilapidated debt producer and decided that here was the opportunity of his life. He told his story to a Scotch friend who had money and after he was through received the cheerful information, "Jim, you are a fool." But he isn't the sort that stops at small rebuffs, and at last he got some Canadian bankers interested, and they furnished enough money to buy the road.

Then Hill began one of the most phenomenal feats ever accomplished in American railroad building. Without a cent of subsidy he pushed that line through to the Pacific. His plan of campaign was something new to railway men. He made the trade of the road pay for building it onward. Every new mile must become a revenue producer to build the next mile. When it is reflected that he was traversing practically an uninhabited waste the difficulty of this undertaking may be conceived. There was nothing to do but to build up the country as he went along. To effect this result he advertised it, induced immigration, gave the farmers blooded cattle and bought town sites and induced settlers to take them off his hands. In short, he not only constructed his road, but erected an empire to support it.

At the same time the Northern Pacific and the Canadian Pacific were being built, both with large government subsidies. Now, in military affairs there are two methods of subsidizing an army. One is to keep open a line of supplies, so that the home government can ship in provisions. This is the usual method. The other plan, which is not only more unusual, but more hazardous, is to cut loose and forage off the enemy. Sherman did this in his march to the sea. Hill could not cut loose from a government line of supplies, for he had none, but he could and did forage off the enemy. He made the country feed and support him as he went forward to subdue it.

Daring in Big Enterprises.

It has been said that no railroad was ever built so cheaply as Hill built the Great Northern. He cut corners and economized at every turn yet he secured a splendid roadbed and the best of rolling stock. One of the first things on which he insisted was that all space in freight cars should be utilized, that no empties should be hauled either way if possible to avoid it. To keep his cars loaded in both directions, he first established a line of steamers from St. Paul to Buffalo, through the great lakes. On the other end he hunted for a market until he found it in Japan, then put on a line of steamers from Puget sound to the Orient. He reduced expenses wherever possible, yet was daring in his big enterprises. If elevators charged him too much he built his own elevators. Everything he could possibly do for himself he did. He made his general offices a training school for his employees.

Today men from the Hill roads have no trouble in securing situations, for they are known to be the best trained railroad men in the land. Hill once set Wall street by the ears when he stated that a railroad should be run and maintained for not more than 60 per cent of its earnings. "Ridiculous," cried other railroad men, for it cost them 70. Now railroads everywhere are adopting his methods.

Another plan he has adopted is to deal honestly with his stockholders. I hardly know why he should so dwell on this point unless it is to insinuate that other railroads do not deal honestly with their stockholders. He should know as to that.

Like all other captains of industry, Mr. Hill gives the secret of his success as hard work. Every high financier gives the secret of his success as hard work. Work! Work! Work! all the time you can, and all the people you can. Meantime the dear public not only has to work, but be worked.

Dislikes Bells.

James J. Hill is a devoted Shakespeare student. He has many peculiarities. One is that he dislikes bells. He will not have telephone or call bells about him if he can help it. Another is that he is very absentminded. Once he wore his nightshirt under his coat, of course, to a big banquet and reception. He likes to help out his old friends who are in straitened circumstances. He is gruff, but kindly, a bad man to meet in anger, fires his employees without warning, makes his sons work as hard as any man under him and keeps everything moving. He is stockily built, with long white hair and a twinkling eye, a hypnotic eye and a prominent, gleaming brow that wanders all over the top of his head. He is Protestant, but gives to Roman Catholic charities as much as to those of his own church. This is on account of Mrs. Hill, who was a poor Catholic girl, whom Mr. Hill educated in a convent. They have a large family, two of the sons being thorough railroad men. One of them, Lewis W. Hill, is slated to succeed his father as president of the Great Northern.

At the time of the famous Northern Securities decision Jim Hill said pensively to a friend: "They may spout it all, and I may be beaten this time; but whatever happens, I've made my mark in the world. Here it is." And he pointed to a large wall map of the Great Northern.

AUTO TO SHELL CORN.

Indiana Farmer Operates Implement With High-Speed Machine.

Elmer M. Cooper, a progressive farmer near Cadiz, Ind., has found probably more uses for an automobile than most people, says a special dispatch from Knightstown, Ind., to the St. Louis Republic. Mr. Cooper is sort of automobile fancier. Last summer he gained considerable notoriety in his neighborhood by owning seven different machines. He purchased one and in a short time became tired of it and bought another, finding each nearer to his liking than the previous one.

Mr. Cooper has a gas engine which pumps water all over his farm. The other day this gas engine was disabled and refused to run. It was either pump water by hand, get the engine fixed or choose some other way out of it. The resourceful Mr. Cooper backed his automobile up against the pumping apparatus, "jacked" up one rear wheel, transferred the belt and started his auto engine going. The pump worked admirably, and the automobile pumped enough water all over the farm to water the stock.

Before the engine could be repaired Mr. Cooper had to send away for some broken parts. It took some time, and in the meantime the boys needed shelled corn. The sheller, of course, could have been operated by hand, but it was too tiresome a process when one had been used to having it done by machinery, thought Mr. Cooper, so he hitched the automobile on to the sheller, and in less time than it would have taken the regular engine sixty bushels of corn were shelled.

MUSIC TO REFORM NATION.

Educator Says It Will Be Vitalizing Force to Restore Balance.

Music as the vitalizing force that will reform national life and restore the balance was advocated to remedy present ills by Professor Tomlins of Chicago in a recent address before the Wisconsin Teachers' association, says a Milwaukee special dispatch to the Chicago Record-Herald.

"The trouble with our national life," he said, "is that it is out of balance. Commercialism has turned our heads. Everything else is apt to be sacrificed to the acquisition of wealth. The need of today is to have the balance of life restored and to send men and women in search of something really worth having. That something is spirit. What we need is a great composite life, powerful and beneficent, as much better and stronger than the present degrading life that threatens our country as life is better and stronger than the darkness it drives away."

Professor Tomlins said this would come through the public schools, and music would be the force behind the movement.

Spanish Almond For California.

The viticultural experimental station of the government at Los Angeles, is trying the Spanish Jordan almond with a small measure of success, and it is hoped that within the next few years a system of cultivation and propagation will be reached which will insure good returns from this great nut tree, says a Los Angeles correspondent of the Sacramento Bee. The Spanish variety sells for a dollar a pound blanchet, while the native nut only realizes half this amount.

Largest Take of Salmon Eggs.

The salmon eggs taken up to a recent date by Captain G. H. Lamson from the three-United States fish commission stations under his charge, which are situated at Battle Creek and Mill Creek, in Tishum county, and Baird, on the McCloud river, in Shasta county, in California, amount to 117,000,000, says a Sisson correspondent of the Sacramento Bee, the largest take of salmon eggs in one season in the history of salmon culture in the world.

Lively Hockey Season

Puck Pushers In Many Cities Hard at Work. One Reason Why Roughness Prevails—The Champion Crescent A.C. Team of Brooklyn.

There never was a livelier hockey season than the present one. Puck pushers of all ages, sizes and degrees of amateurism and professionalism seem inspired with the idea that indolence is a crime.

In Pittsburg, Chicago, St. Louis, New York, Boston and across the Canadian borders the season's games, both indoor and outdoor, are fought with energy close akin to ferocity. At any rate, not within the recollection of the old folks' daily convention delegates at the village postoffice, has a hockey season been marked by such concentrated roughness as is noticeable at present. In several cities the newspapers have censured offending players and dilatory officials scathingly. And, after all, much of the roughness in football, hockey and basketball can be traced to negligence or voluntary blindness on the part of officials who like to see the boys "rough it up a bit." Some hockey and football officials have been heard to speak as follows when brought to task: "Well, I let Jones' slug Brown because Brown slugged Jones a few minutes before."

That is a pretty defense! Why was not gay Mr. Brown ruled off at the time of his initial offense?

The Crescent Athletic club team of Brooklyn, present holders of the Hockey league championship, have begun their season auspiciously and look like the probable winners of the race. The Crescent players are: Lifton, Shirreff, Kennedy and Dobby, forwards; Captain Wall, cover point; O'Flynn, point and Mackenzie, goal. The substitutes are J. J. O'Rourke and B. F. Nichols.

In the Intercollegiate Hockey league Harvard holds the championship title and is putting up a strong game again this winter. The large army of skaters in and about Boston keeps Harvard's ice sport squad well supplied with recruits. By the same token Columbia university, with all of New York to draw from, should be able to send out a powerful aggregation.

Primrose's lack of skating (and rowing) facilities has long been a source of keen regret to the Jerseymen.

Able Young Jockey.

J. H. Schaffner, Who Landed Three Long Shots Winners In One Day.

J. H. Schaffner, under contract to H. A. Baker of St. Louis, has burst on racegoers in sky rocket style. Until late last fall Schaffner was regarded as a handicap to a horse, though he kept winning winners, and it was not until almost the end of the season, when he rode three long priced winners in a day, that race goers suddenly awoke to the fact that Schaffner was a boy of more than ordinary skill.

He is now riding at the southern tracks in stellar fashion and is touted as a second Danny Maher. Schaffner has the peculiar and highly valuable faculty of "worming" his mount out of "pockets." This process, as every turfman knows, requires the acme of nerve, daring and judgment.

Mighty changes have occurred in the status of the horse pilots since the "Tod Sloane" seat set race riders the world over to unlearning their earliest lessons in their art, but no change in the condition of the jockey stands on stronger than that evidenced by the state of affairs at the close of last season, when all the best of the riding was commanded by the light boys, unheard of a year before, while most of the older and experienced riders stood unemployed.

A part of the change which was not apparent to the general public was that the boys who did have employment received only a modest fraction of the pay that the crack riders of former seasons enjoyed. Whether the time of big retaining fees for race riders has passed remains for the future to determine, but it was a fact of last season that of the old popular favorite among the jockeys, Jack Martin, under contract to the late Captain S. S. Brown, was about the only one who had an old fashioned retaining agreement and that had been arranged before.

By what seemed an understanding among the leading turfmen of the east, the rivalry and high bidding for the first call on the successful riders ceased, and the season of 1905 opened with the stars among the jockeys still waiting for the remunerative contracts that never came.

Under modified terms some of the big stables did engage jockeys as in former years, but even in the more notable cases, Eugene Hildebrand, in his renewed contract to the stable of Harry Payne Whitney, Frank O'Neill, retained again by Newton Bentington, and William Shaw, employed by H. B.

JOCKEY SCHAFFNER AT AN EXCITING MOMENT.

Duray, the contract fees were not large enough to justify any of the gossip about the figures.

Good riders were in demand, as they always have been, but there was restriction on the competition, and it was only in the rare cases, when the need of experienced riders in important races caused horse owners to call on the old time stars, that any big fees were paid. In the meantime every important stable in the east tried to the best of its trainer's ability to educate and develop jockeys among the stable boys and apprentices, with the result that the lightweights and apprentices were prominent in racing from the opening of the year and steadily crowded out the high priced riders of established reputation.

The first of the newcomers to appear as a rival to the older favorites was the lightweight boy, Walter Miller, a New York lad, just out of his apprenticeship and still able to ride at weights under ninety pounds. The second newcomer to take rank with the stars of the saddle was the western boy, William Knapp, who rode himself into first place in the late part of the spring, and as long as he remained in the east he held first place. David Nicol, another westerner, also achieved a good share of success, chiefly through his victories on the champion colt of the year, Synchrony.

Schaffner's success came late, but it was sensational when he finally did become evident. Now the question is, Will the veterans regain their lost prestige next summer or will the youngsters continue to carry off the choice engagements?

Dewar and His Auto Cup.

Sir Thomas Dewar, the donor of the Dewar auto racing cup, which was first raced for last winter at Ormond Beach, Fla., has sent word that he will not be able to come to America this winter to witness the second contest for his trophy. Sir Thomas Dewar is a member of the British parliament, and in view of the disturbed conditions he feels that he cannot take the time to leave his political duties.

The Adventurers

By H. B. MARRIOTT WATSON

COPYRIGHT, 1898, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

Sheppard's hand opened in a spasm, and the knife fell, cutting an arc of light. He looked up at me and smiled, wearily. "I think I'll go to bed, old chap."

"You have had no rest for forty-eight hours," said I. "Don't be a fool; sleep before you think."

"Yes; I believe I'll take your advice," he replied mechanically, and, turning slowly, marched with a dull and sober step toward the drum tower. I watched him go, and then I turned to the others.

"Any damage?" I asked. Montgomery showed his teeth. "Poot," he said. "They didn't show fight."

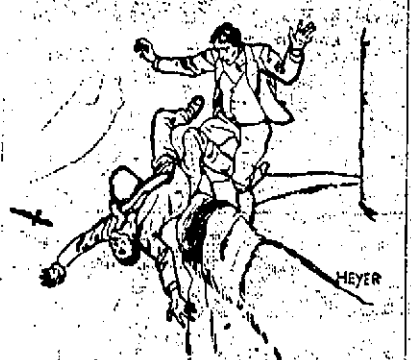

Williams shook his head. "I have a bad knuckle," he said.

I positively yelled with laughter. Somehow the hilarity would not be denied. "I owe you both, thanks," I said presently. "Montgomery, you're a brick, and I won't forget it." He hung his head in a sheepish fashion, but I doubt not was very well pleased. "Now get you gone," I resumed. "There will be nothing further tonight, and if there is I will let you know."

For my own part sleep was impracticable, worn and jaded though I was. The events of the night and of that sharp struggle clamored in my brain, arresting every sense to attention. I leaned over the parapet and watched the dawn come up for the second time, but today it rose in different circumstances, flushed and lurid, menacing storm. The sky was red as with blood, and a black cloud fringed the margin of the horizon. My thoughts flew about like a whirling wheel, leaving upon me dim impressions. The light grew apace and struck the castle walls with fire. I was aware of something in the most below, but my mind made no inquiries. I rested impatient and turning upon myself in idle revolutions. The sounds of the dawn crept over across the quietude, and the trees waved and shook in a gust of air. Disturbed by this flux of the wind, or overbalanced by its own weight, a jagged stone toppled on the parapet and fell. It struck the water with a crash, and my eyes followed it. Then it was that for the first time I knew what had been beating at the door of my brain.

Suddenly, and at the instant sight of it, the confusion of my wits precipitated, and they settled clear and sharp. The cloud passed from me, and I stared with open eyes and a dreadful appreciation at the body.

The water was tossed into undulations started by the fallen stone, and the body, supported across a fallen branch, rose and fell with the water. Drawing back, I moved to another part of the battlement. But the thought pursued me in my flight. Had Sheppard struck too soon? Was it, indeed, inevitable? For the first time there grew into solid fact the horror of the supposition. I had several times entertained. We were embarked upon a war, committed of our own act and will to a deadly strife, of which no one of us could see the end. And beneath me, stored in the vaults of the venerable fortress, lay the accursed treasure for which this blood must be spilled. Hastily I withdrew and mounted to the top of the keep. I could bear the fellowship no longer, and yet there arose now upon my mind, premeditated flight, a new perplexity. I dared not leave the body there, exposed to the sight of the world. Doubting in my thoughts, and torn by shapeless fears, I stood irresolute, but at that moment my attention was caught by a movement in the bushes across the park. A head peeped out and scrutinized the scene with diligence. Then Sercombe's face emerged, red and bloated. He pushed through the covert and strode boldly toward the castle, followed presently by his companion, a rough, black fellow, with a gallow's look. I watched them approach and halt under the walls, facing the dead body underneath me. I suppose my outline appeared against the sky, for Sercombe looked up and fixed his eyes on me. But he said nothing, only addressed the Greek in an undertone. I leaned forward and regarded them intently. The rough fellow stepped to the brink of the moat and, stooping forward, pulled the floating bough toward him. It moved, carrying its hideous passenger. When next I looked the Greek had the body on his shoulders, and the two were retreating into the underwood. At the end of the reach of turf Sercombe came to a stand, and once more looked up at me. But he still made no sign, and I could imagine that the color of his face had faded. It seemed somehow to me to be ominous of the new position in which we were involved. I descended into the castle. Outside, Sheppard's door I paused. It stood open, and I looked in. The light streamed through the window and fell across his face. He lay, dressed upon the bed, a red stain of blood upon his cheeks, and as I gazed his hands moved convulsively—a contortion twisted his sleeping face. I left him and, returning to my own room, threw myself upon the bed.

The body rolled over the parapet.

CHAPTER XII.

It was not long before we were visited by the first retribution for what might be accounted a crime and what was at least provoked by our own illegal acts. Indeed, the surprise fell sooner than I had anticipated, although it happened by the means I had always considered probable. That Williams, garrulous and sharp-eyed Welshman as he was, could be secured in silence was well nigh impossible, for even if concealment had been for his personal benefit, he would still have pilled his tongue, and, though he were sworn to secrecy, the private transactions of this singular feud would have slowly dribbled through his communications and become current in the gossip of the country. This knowledge was mainly instrumental in deterring us from confiding in him. "Burglars were the begaboo," we had branded before him, and burglary, sure enough, was the word that ran over the district. The news came to us late that morning. As I gathered, Williams, who was keeping company with some girl of Llanellan, woke early from his belated sleep and ran down to the village, full of the battle. His own appearance in it, as I afterward discovered, had been gorgeously conceived and magnificently rendered. I believe, according to his version, it was he, and he alone, who gave the signal for the final rout, and certainly he was the author of that fall from the battlements. But this was just as well, for the man knew nothing of its fatal issue, and poor Sheppard did not grudge him the credit.

But I am trespassing upon my narrative too rashly. Williams returned later in the morning and, apparently to celebrate his own cleverness, made his communications to me. He had given warning to the schoolmaster at Llanellan, who had offered to hand on the notice to the authorities at Raymond. I could have cursed the man for his folly and his babbling tongue, but I was just enough to recall that his conduct was merely natural. In truth, if he thought of all he must have considered us a pack of egregious asses for not taking better precautions and acquiring the aid of the Raymond police. I could do nothing, therefore, but acquiesce with as good a grace as I might and wish heartily that we had left him sleeping as soundly as Mrs. Main and the maid, who, it appeared, had never opened an eye throughout the night, although the former asserted that she had dreamed "there was a thunderstorm-like," adding the enigmistic flourish to her conversation.

But the situation remained to be faced, and I guessed that we should be confronted with it very shortly. Consequently we must compose a plan of action, and whatever we agreed upon, must run no risk of denial at other hands. In this connection it seemed that I must pay a necessary visit to Sercombe, a task which for some reason was not to my taste. Sheppard, who had quite recovered himself and had not yet retired in any way to the event of the early morning, cordially approved my suggestion.

"It will be a wise course," he declared. "And besides, I am anxious to inspect those foreigners' hearer." Where the Greeks were lodged we knew not, but it was evidently not at the Woodman, for on our arrival there the place was deserted except by the woman who had charge of Hood's kitchen. She could give us little information. She had not seen her master since she went to bed on the previous evening. But Captain Sercombe had been called at 9 o'clock and had gone out after eating a hasty breakfast. There was no one else staying in the house. Such was the information she imparted to us, influenced to be frankness, I had no doubt, by my position as the big hauled proprietor of the place. Which way had Captain Sercombe gone? He had gone down the roadway in the direction of Raymond.

With this we had to content ourselves, but, determined at all hazards to catch Sercombe, Sheppard and I took the narrow lane that led down the valley in the hope of hitting upon him. At the bottom of the valley the stream makes an open pool of some considerable size upon a piece of flat land. Here it receives a few exiguous branches from the lower hills, and rests, as it were, in those spreading shallows ere it narrows and spins for the Ray. The wood was sparse about the pool, but it was very private and retired from the roads, and it was quite by accident that we penetrated the wood so far. But here we perceived through the leafage the smoke of fires and heard the noises of human creatures, an uncommon feature in the silent Gwent. Pushing through the brushwood, we came next upon a veritable encampment in that friendly spot. And now we solved the riddle which had perplexed us earlier in the morning, for the first man my eyes fell upon was my old acquaintance of the scout. Here was not a camp of gypsies, but of thorough Greeks. The discovery was no sooner made than it was confirmed by a voice sounding from my right and calling my name in familiar tones.

"Ah, how do you do, Mr. Greatorox? Glad to see you. What pleasant chance has brought you into our little village?" The man stood before me as debonair and well-groomed as ever, his puffy red face smiling cheerfully into mine and his bloodshot eyes twinkling with gaiety. It seemed almost inconceivable that this fellow was but a few hours earlier upon the footing of a deadly foe, and earnest to rob us even of our lives. And yet I confess that even at this juncture and after the grave events of the siege I experienced for him what always underlay my superficial feelings, a genuine liking. The impudence of the adventurer, his very gaiety, the assumption he wore that whatever he did and however ruthlessly he pursued us, he was still a welcome acquaintance—all these facts gave a charm to his person. His benignity was superb; it was that of an urbane philanthropist. He was ready to crack a joke with you, to recount his entertaining adventures in your ears or to offer you his choicest cigar. He was a man pre-eminently cast for social popularity, and circumstances of his own wickedness had made him a scoundrel, and a very bad scoundrel at that.

It was he, and he alone, who gave the signal.

And so it was that I responded quite affably to his greeting, oblivious of the past and almost forgetting the future. He stood by me, surveying the encampment, his bulky form overtopping mine by three inches at the least.

"It's a pity, Mr. Greatorox," says he, reflecting, "that these animals have no spunk. Spunk goes a long way with me. I will admit, and that warms my heart to you, I don't say that to Mr. Sheppard and by the way, to my young friend Montgomery also."

"What you lack in quality, I suppose, you calculate to make up in quantity," I said grimly.

"Precisely, Mr. Greatorox. You've hit it. That's the rub. If I had three of my young friends here I'd reckon to finish the job in a couple of days, but one has to use the material at hand."

A WOMAN'S BACK.

The Aches and Pains Will Disappear if the Advice of This Janesville Citizen is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains. Most times 'tis the kidneys' fault. Backache is really kidney ache. That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Many Janesville women know this. Read what one has to say about it.

"Mrs. B. F. Jones, of 157 Western Ave., Janesville, Wis., says:

"I was not free from attacks of backache for a single day during several years past, and used so many remedies without getting any relief that I came to the conclusion that nothing would help me and stopped trying. I went about all bent over, could not straighten up at all and had a dull pain across the loins and a feeling of weakness that made it hard for me even to rise from a chair. At night I would awaken with the feeling that a great weight was breaking my back, and anyone who has suffered from kidney trouble will know what torture I endured. Finally I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and wondered if there was really any use of trying another medicine, but seeing them recommended by people in Janesville I got a box at the People's Drug Co. and began using them. Gradually I regained strength and the pains and aches finally disappeared. Since I completed the treatment I have not had an attack of backache nor any symptom of kidney trouble, and I believe Doan's Kidney Pills worthy of all the praise that I can give them."

OIL CHIEF MUST ANSWER HADLEY

New York Supreme Court Gives H. H. Rogers Two Days to Make Reply.

ATTORNEYS PLEAD FOR DELAY.

Justice Gildersleeve Sides with Attorney General Hadley, Holding Matter at Issue Is Important and Should Be Decided at Once.

New York, Jan. 11.—Supreme Court Justice Gildersleeve yesterday gave Henry H. Rogers until 10 o'clock Friday morning to show cause why he should not answer the questions asked by Attorney General Hadley of Missouri in the Standard Oil investigation after counsel for the Standard Oil company had pleaded in vain for a delay of two weeks.

At the request of Attorney Rowe of counsel for the witnesses, the taking of testimony before Commissioner Sanborn was suspended until this morning.

Attorney General Hadley and his assistant, Rush Lane, on one side, and Frank Hageman and other oil lawyers from out of town, on the other, are anxious to finish the matter up and get home. Local attorneys for the Standard, however, were bent on delaying the proceedings.

"They are trying to wear us out," said Hadley, "but I, for one, decline to be worn out. Of course I would like to finish this matter up and get back to Missouri as soon as possible, as there are many matters there claiming my attention, but I am going to stay right here until this end of the case is finished up."

Lawyers, witnesses, artists, and reporters had gathered at 87 Wall street yesterday morning when Attorney Rowe came in and announced that Justice Gildersleeve was ready to hear arguments in order to show cause why Rogers should not answer the questions in dispute. A procession was formed at once and moved on the county courthouse. Arriving there they found Justice Gildersleeve's courtroom so crowded that most of them had to stand.

Attorney Rowe made an earnest plea for delay, really he needed time in which to make a proper answer. He thought he ought to have two weeks, at least.

Justice Gildersleeve said the matter at issue was important, and should be determined as speedily as possible. So he gave the Standard Oil lawyers until Friday, at 10 o'clock, to make their answer.

If Rogers should be directed by the court to answer the questions and he then should refuse, an all probability he will be committed to jail for contempt of court.

Oil Magnates Are Fugitives.

It is evident, however, that his lawyers are going to put up the stiffest kind of a fight to keep him from either answering the questions or going to jail. This phalanx of attorneys has been reinforced by the arrival from the west of ex-Judge H. S. Priest, who is chief counsel for the Waters-Pierce company.

New subpoenas have been issued and the search renewed for certain Standard Oil company officials, said Attorney General Hadley of Missouri. "These men, by their efforts to avoid testifying, are fugitives. The case we have in hand is simple. The state of Missouri alleges that certain corporations doing business in our state are in a combination or pool in violation of the law. We have come to New York to take the evidence of the officers and directors of these companies. If they are not in combination there would be no reason for refusing to answer my questions or for running away."

SUSPENDS SON BY THE THUMBES.

Mother Takes Blame for Torture Charged to Stepfather.

Sterling, Ill., Jan. 11.—Mrs. Joseph Fuller of Milledgeville, in a signed statement appearing in the Sterling Evening Gazette, admitted that she tortured her 10-year-old son by suspending him by a rope tied to his thumbs. The statement was made in defense of her husband, the stepfather of the child, who was charged with the deed. She says the boy was only suspended two minutes at a time as a means of correction, and declares that he is so bad that she could not punish him in any other way. So far as known the authorities will take no action.

Meningitis Fatal to Sailor.

Newport, R. I., Jan. 11.—Seaman Apprentice John F. Rolfe died at the naval training station of spinal meningitis. Four seamen are still suffering with the disease. Rolfe's home was at McCook, Neb.

FROST BITES.

What is termed "frost bite" or "chilblains" by medical men is really a form of inflammation of the skin and deeper parts, produced by long exposure to cold and having a tendency to terminate in gangrene. The toes and neighboring parts of the lower extremities, the fingers, ears and nose are most frequently affected. Anemic or thin-blooded persons and those debilitated from insufficient nourishment or fatigue are more liable to suffer than are strong, healthy, well-nourished people. The first state or process of frost bite is a transient redness, accompanied by hyperaesthesia and tingling. A sort of purple lividity quickly follows and the sensibility or knowledge of pain diminishes. Following this rapidly is the blanching or whitening without feeling or absolute insensibility of the parts. Coagulation has then taken place, and the whitened surface is frozen hard. If the process is very severe, dry gangrene is soon established and the parts shrink up and blacken. An inflammatory line of demarcation shows itself later. Several excellent remedies for the successful home treatment and cure of chilblains have been given in club notes of this department, but as there are many sufferers who have not had access to them I will cheerfully describe the best method that has been used by Home Health club people.

One letter came in this morning, which reads as follows: "I send you a recipe that I have never known to fail to cure chilblains. I was a sufferer of chilblains myself so I thought I would send it, hoping it may do some good. One ounce of laudanum, one ounce sal-ammonia, one and a half ounces distilled or soft water. Rub this solution on parts affected."

Another from Memphis says: "I notice a request for a remedy for chilblains, and I know this is a sure cure, as I have seen it cure where there were festering sores." Take a lump of alum about the size of the fist, dissolve in a vessel to keep until the case is cured. Every night and morning heat and hold the feet in it 15 minutes, with water enough to come to the ankles. It is surprising how it will cure the worst cases."

While a third, from a good old doctor, tells of a simple and inexpensive method which is easily applied. It is as follows: "Wait until the frost has killed the leaves on the little scrub oak and the leaves are dry; then gather three gallons of these leaves, taking those that are hanging on the bushes; put them in three gallons of water, and boil half an hour or more. Strain off the water, and as soon as it is cool enough not to scald the feet put in the tea and let them remain until the tea is nearly cold; then wipe the feet dry and retire. Repeat this same treatment the next evening, and the frost bites will not again trouble you."

CLUB NOTES.

If A. L. S., Wisconsin, and O. C. Durand, Ill., will write again, giving full name and address, I will be glad to answer their letter to the best of my ability.

Cincinnati—Dr. D. H. Reeder, La Porte, Ind.—Dear Doctor: I am one of the many lucky subscribers of this paper—a most true and honest family paper for the good and wholesome reading and information which it contains. Among the many valuable items I take great interest in the Home Health club, through which many of my worthy brothers and sisters receive valuable advice, with good results; therefore, as I am in poor health, I take the liberty of improving the opportunity by asking you for your kind advice. I am 56, but look and feel worse than some men do at 80 or more. Doctors recommended medicines which never did me any good. My trouble is catarrh in head and stomach, and doctors claim my liver and kidneys are also affected. This trouble has such a tight hold on my system that so far I have found no remedy to help or cure me. I have the most annoying noises in my head and ears; often have headache, no matter how careful I am I will get colds often, and suddenly have pains in right side and between shoulder. Hearing and eyesight are badly affected, which is worse in cloudy, damp weather. I can eat good, hearty meals, but do not get the strength I should have from it. I am five feet six inches tall, weigh only 100 pounds. There are specks like a swarm of flies floating before my eyes. I have bad breath and feel drowsy and more tired in the morning than at night. Now, dear sir, could you advise me of some good remedy, if so I would be very thankful to you.—Yours very truly, R. A.

I would suggest that you procure of your local druggist what is called a colon tube, made of soft rubber, about 15 inches long, and also a fountain syringe, holding about three quarts of water; using plenty of vaseline, insert the colon syringe to the extent of about 12 inches, up into the colon, and thoroughly flush it; using this method about two or three times per week for several months. Compound gentian syrup in the tablet form is to be used regularly, and a charcoal (prepared) tablet after each meal to prevent fermentation of food. While you may not be suffering with gas, at the same time there is a certain catarrhal condition in your system which these charcoal tablets will overcome.

The cause of the noises in your head and ears is also evidently catarrh, which has affected the Eustachian tubes. In addition, the tissue elements for catarrhal deafness, which is the best thing for the conditions such as you have described. I have ever known, and I believe that if you use it, you will be benefited. I think, etc.

haps I have suggested enough for the present, and if you will adopt my suggestions, also practicing the exercises for catarrh as given in book of Home Health Club lectures, I do not believe there will be any need of further treatment.

Minnesota.—Dr. David H. Reeder, La Porte, Ind.—Dear Sir: I read your lectures and value them very highly. I wish you would therefore discuss the subject of erysipelas in your articles. My mother is troubled with it in one leg. I would be very thankful for your good advice. Respectfully,—E. J. L.

I will be very glad to discuss the subject of erysipelas in the near future. A lecture was given on the subject a year or so ago, but many new subscribers will appreciate another.

Oklahoma.—Dr. David H. Reeder, La Porte, Ind.—Dear Doctor: I am an interested and enthusiastic reader of the Home Health club, and as I want others to receive the benefit, I am sending you a large list of names of those who are in need of your good instructions, and I hope all of them may join the club.

In the hope that some poor sufferer may be benefited, I gladly send the following formulas for the cure of cancer of the nose and the other was on the forehead: Take fresh hog's lard, and put in skillet to melt. Add to this the clean bark from the roots of common sumak, as much as the lard will take up. Bring slowly to a boil, and keep boiling until your judgment tells you the juice is extracted. Strain out the liquid while hot, and when cool it is ready for use. Apply on a cloth, three or four times daily. Before applying always wash the sore with soapy water and dry well. For eczema: Rub finger on white Russian soap and apply to the spots affected. This treatment has proven very effective for me. Use once or twice daily. Wishing you success, I am, yours truly, S. C. W.

I am always glad to see people sufficiently interested as to want to help others. It shows they have caught the true spirit of the Home Health club, and I trust many others will follow the example of S. C. W. As to the virtue of the cancer cure I cannot say, but it is a safe home remedy, costs but little and is worth trying.

Oregon.—Dr. D. H. Reeder, La Porte, Ind.

Dear Sir: We have long been subscribers to this paper, and I have been much interested in the Home Health club, and also much benefited by following your advice. I am now writing you at the request of one of my neighbors who wishes to know the cause of a cold spot across the small of the back. It is of long standing and causes great discomfort. The party wears a heavy pad across the back all the time. His age is 40. If you can give cause and suggest remedy, it will be thankfully received.

I would also like to ask if the tissue remedies you advise would be good for a case of catarrh of 30 or 40 years standing. Also, if they can be procured from our home drug stores. Thanking you in advance, I remain, Yours sincerely, A. L.

In regard to your neighbor, the difficulty in all probability comes from defective circulation, although it may be due to an injury to the spine. It would be wise for him to have a thorough and careful examination made by a skillful osteopath. An excellent treatment for him would be to sponge the entire back with warm vinegar, and then apply a thorough hot fomentation, allowing it to remain for three-quarters of an hour, and after removing, rub the entire back thoroughly with warm olive oil. The use of the tissue remedies referred to when combined with the Home Health club methods of home treatment for the cure of catarrh, will nearly always effect a cure; in any case, no matter of how long standing. I regret to state, however, that few druggists keep these tissue remedies in tablet form.

Readers of this publication are at liberty to inquire for any information pertaining to the subject of health. Address all communications to the Home Health Club, or Dr. David H. Reeder, La Porte, Ind., and give name and address in full, with at least four cents in postage.

Demoralized. A southern congressman, at Atlantic City, told one of his friends that he was going home somewhat demoralized. "Yes, sir," said the lawmaker, "I am demoralized, and this reminds me of a story I picked up from Brother Swanson, who has been having a tough campaign in Virginia for governor. Swanson says that at the battle of Malvern Hill, Gen. Lee met a loose-jointed, angular soldier—one of those fellows who looked like his limbs were made of long saplings, with an extra supply of knee and hip joints, like the fifth wheel of an artillery wagon in case of accident.

"Where are you going, sir?" asked the general.

"I'm gwine back to the wagons, general," answered the long-legs.

"Are you wounded?" asked the commander.

"No, sir; I hain't wounded."

"Are you sick?"

"No, I hain't sick nor wounded, nuther, but I'm terribly demoralized and I don't think it is any fitten place for anybody."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

SOCIETY WOMEN PLEAD FOR RELEASE FROM DUTY

Urges Race Suicide and Encourage Others to Approve of It, Says Philadelphia Doctor.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 11.—Dr. Charlotte Abbey, a noted sociologist, started Philadelphia by declaring that many society women, and some of the middle class as well, had come to her in an effort to dispose of their children. Dr. Abbey refused to disclose any names, but declared she even had been offered money to rig certain mothers of the responsibility of caring for their children.

"Women of society and of the solid middle class, so often linked to all that is respectable and upright, often come to me with children they desire to dispose of. Often these women are of the class that calls itself 'socially elect'."

"In my position as superintendent of the Women's Directory, which has for one of its objects investigation of causes of desertion and neglect of parental obligations, I often have been brought in contact with women of fashion who, in their desire to seek amusement, and at the same time shirk the cares and responsibilities of life, frankly told me that they did not want to be bothered with children. They not only countenanced race suicide but encouraged other women to approve of it."

LOST GIRL'S CLEVERNESS.

Police Linguists Meet Their Match in Tot-Who Spoke Only English.

Michael Flaherty, a policeman of the West Thirtieth street station, in New York, is kind of heart and proud of his ability to speak Spanish and German as well as that variety of English affected by those who come from Tipperary, says the New York Herald. Standing in the drenching rain the other night Flaherty found at Fourth avenue and Thirty-second street a girl of about eight years, dressed like a foreigner. Smiling kindly, the policeman asked the child:

"Wo ist dine vader and dine mutter?"

Staring blankly at her big blue coated questioner, the child merely shook her head and continued her tears.

"Hable Espanol?" tried Flaherty.

More head shakes and more tears.

Then the policeman and the bedraggled youngster went around to the West Thirtieth street station, where Willemse, the precinct linguist, was called into service.

Willemse spoke kindly to the waif in French, the Hebrew, of the east side, high and low Dutch and the various Scandinavian tongues. During it all a crowd of policemen surrounded the girl, whose tears had turned to smiles and who was biting half circles out of an apple pie.

Willemse retired to give place to an Italian who had been summoned by Sergeant McGowan. Questions were fired at the child in every tongue and patois from North Cape to the gulf of Persia.

Then just as the policemen were about to admit themselves to be baffled the little visitor looked out of the window and said:

"Gee, it's rabin! Harder never!"

She then said she was Jennie Lippon, seven years old, born in Brooklyn. She said her parents had recently moved and she could not give her present address.

FARM FOR-RAISING ELK.

Colorado Rancher's Scheme to Make Money From the Deer.

An elk farm has been established in Colorado about eighteen miles from Freshwater on Black mountain, says the Denver News.

W. H. Pigg is the promulgator of the idea. He passed through Denver a few days ago with twenty-three elk en route to his farm on Black mountain. The animals were crated and tied in box cars on the Midland train for Freshwater, and according to W. H. Pigg, an official of the Midland road who saw them, they were giving as much trouble as five times the number of cattle or sheep.

Pigg captured the elk in Wyoming and conceived the idea of transporting them to several acres of ground he owns on Black mountain. He has inclosed this with strands of wire ten feet high, and the animals will be allowed to multiply as fast as possible.

The teeth and ornaments from the horns he expects to sell as souvenirs. The meat and hides he can dispose of in the markets. There are a number of deer already on the farm, and these will be raised for slaughter also. There will be no interference with the game laws, as the state allows the killing of elk or deer in private parks or property at any time in the year.

One of the reasons for the present high price of elk teeth is said to be because a Billings (Mont.) merchant who has two bushels of them is saving them as an estate for his heirs.

TENT CITY FOR POOR.

Cleveland to House Tenement Dwellers Under Canvas in Parks.

A white summer city of tents with an estimated population of 25,000 located in one of Cleveland's parks and under municipal control is planned by the city officials, says a Cleveland (O.) dispatch.

One thousand tents will be installed early in June and will be kept up until September. This tented city will be for the poor of Cleveland and will aid in relieving the congested tenement districts.

Stores under municipal provision will be included in the tented city, and the tent dwellers can buy all provisions and supplies there at actual cost. County Clerk Sagen is author of the movement.

The Knights and the King.

William Watson, the distinguished author of the official "Coronation Ode" to Edward VII, thus describes the situation between the czar and his Russian subjects in the Daily Chronicle of London:

"The knights rode up with gifts for the king."

"And one was a jeweled sword."

"And one was a suit of golden mail."

"And one was a golden word."

He buckled the shining armor on."

"And he girt the sword at his side."

"But he swung at his feet the golden word"

"And trampled it in his pride."

The armor is placed with many spears."

"And the sword is breaking in twain."

"But the word hath risen in storm and fire"

"To vanquish and to reign."

The Russian Peasant.

The orthodox peasant is as little accustomed to question governmental or religious questions, holding equally to his faith in God and in the czar, says Herbert H. D. Pearce in the January Atlantic.

What he regards as the oppression of the bureaucracy it is because he has seen no way of combating it. Once, however, convince him that he has rights which by exertion he can obtain, and he becomes a fanatic, pressing on with irresistible force to the attainment of his end, as the recent strikes have demonstrated.

Nineteen in One Room.

In investigating the death of a child London lodging-house inspectors found a room at the east end in which nineteen Russians slept. Their beds almost touched. There was a stove in the middle of the room and no ventilation, and water was running down the window panes in streams.

Automatic Fire Alarm.

An automatic fire alarm recently patented in England sounds an alarm in a hotel office twelve seconds after a fire starts in any of its rooms. The apparatus is simply an application of the fact that heat causes expansion, sufficient in this case to complete an electric circuit.

Squirrels Eat Fruit and Eggs.

Squirrels do not entirely subsist on nuts, as most people suppose. They are large fruit eaters, and often work havoc in the orchards in the autumn. They are also not above stealing partridge eggs.
